Summary

I am a Computer Science student deeply passionate about Artificial Intelligence, Software Engineering, and Data Science. My academic journey has been enriched by hands-on experience in website development, Android app creation, and designing innovative STEM-based tools. These projects have honed my technical abilities and strengthened my commitment to addressing real-world challenges with technology.

My current goal is to build expertise and experience, preparing myself for a successful career. I am eager to embrace opportunities that foster learning, growth, and impactful contributions to the dynamic field of technology.
